Men's Health Week
June 12-18, 2017

Men's Health Network worked with the United States Congress in 1994 to develop National Men's Health Week as a special campaign to educate men and their families about the importance of positive health attitudes and preventative health practices. With the Congressional passage of Men's Health Week, Men's Health Month formed to further recognize the health needs of men and boys.

Heightening the awareness of preventable health problems and increasing early detection and treatment of diseases will significantly improve our Nation's health, and health care dollars. Education and early detection of male health problems will result in reducing rates of mortality from diseases. Recognizing and preventing men's health problems is not just a man's issue; the impact is a family issue.
